

UW SCHOOL OF MEDICINE CLINICAL TEACHING CERTIFICATE

Clinical Teaching Certificate in TalentLMS

Welcome!

Your UW School of Medicine Clinical Teaching Certificate online modules and online HUB will be available via TalentLMS.

TalentLMS is a learning management system (LMS) used by the School of Medicine to deliver training to faculty and staff.

The Clinical Teaching Certificate maintains 6 modules and 1 Clinical Teaching Certificate HUB on Talent LMS. These are called “courses” on TalentLMS.

All session participants will be enrolled in the modules for the Certificate sessions that they registered for and the Clinical Teaching Certificate HUB. If you registered to complete the all the Certificate sessions this academic year, you will be enrolled in all 6 modules and the HUB.

Each module will become available within a month of the live session. The Clinical Teaching Certificate HUB will be available all year round and will house emails, Zoom links, and resources used in the workshops.

Session 1: Learning Climate 0%

Traditionally, we have thought of “teaching” as simply delivering the necessary educational content to learners. However, decades of educational research highlights that a positive learning climate is critical for learning to occur. Participants will reflect on their learning experiences and employ concrete techniques to foster a positive learning climate. The impact of bias and racism will be emphasized. Concepts from this session will be revisited repeatedly throughout the series.
